It is rumored that the score was something to something. It is being bruited about that President Wilson really didn't ask what the actual count was. Confidentially, and not for common gossip, the redhosed tilters annexed the fray by the score of 1 to 0.

that the Cubs would cop the opening fray. Consequently everyone of moneyed intelligence bet on the Sox. Judgment is a thing of philosophy. What ain't ain't and what McInnis, 1b. is isn't. Be grammatical at least. Flack, of the Cubs, was struck on the dome of supposed thought with a ball in some inning or another. The fact that the ball did not depart from its spherical shape after this contact was a source of wonder among the scientists of Chicago University. It merely goes to show that no matter how hard life is, heads are harder. Everyone, including the umpires, fellows who are not picked out by the populace as objects of thought and near-thought, insisted on examining such a remarkable ball.
